

COMMUNION

Hulvey

There comes a time in this life where one must let go
And allow the rivers of emotion to flow
Bringing our burdens to the feet of the only One
The only Son that can dry Your ease, protos and misery
Not ask Him to erase history, but to bring healing into me
That I may see the best of this life He's given me
Man, to anyone who trusting in a hard time, He knows
He cares for you and He yearns for your heart as well
And trust that He'll keep you in His keeping care until Trusting the big God from within, knowing that your cries will be heard
We thank You Father for reminding us we always Yours
What's happening

Let every tear that You cry (I'm so thankful)
Wash all this pain in our eyes (That You will cry for me)
When it's too much we can't bear (You died for me)
Let every tear be a prayer (Mean something, mean something)
So when these tears stop flowing
It's all I can give in the moment (Mean something)
Mmm, it's all I can give in the moment (Mean something)
Every time means something

Chapter one, "COMMUNION"