

Crying

Hunter Valentine

So many factors in the output of relationships
Never thought I had the parts not to sink the ship
You single handedly picked my face from the crowd
I never thought I could be your dark cloud

Week one it was smooth, it was easy
You felt like you already knew me
We didn't know we were destined for disaster
Yeah it was all roses, what were we after?

Time tells I was the last one told
All your secrets and what they could hold
That smile tore right through me,
I was a product of my own worst enemy

I feel like crying tonight
I feel like crying tonight
I feel like crying tonight
'Cause we threw it all away
and we're not quite sure why

We love the conflict, love the hardship, love the loss of feeling
Love the giving up, disputes and lack of healing
This thing of beauty has not fallen short from ugly
I saw it in other people and just not me

So pack up your stuff cause you're leaving
This was your last fucking season and I shared my life for a reason
But it's over now

I feel like crying tonight
I feel like crying tonight
I feel like crying tonight
'Cause we threw it all away
and we're not quite sure why

I'll send a searchlight, put your name up on that old marquee
To make sure you come home to me

'Cause I feel like crying
I feel like crying
I feel like crying

'Cause we threw it all away
and we're not quite sure why

I feel like crying tonight
I feel like crying tonight
I feel like crying tonight

'Cause we threw it all away
and we're not quite sure why
'Cause we threw it all away
and we're not quite sure why
'Cause we threw it all away
and we're not quite sure why