

San Francisco

I Fight Dragons

When it's late at night, and I'm feeling all alone
Everyone's asleep, I keep staring at the phone
And wondering what I'm missing

There's a light in San Francisco
And it draws me slowly to the coast
High above the fortune and the blame
I can't explain
Someday I will know my name

So I pick it up, but there's no one on the line
Put it down again, like I have a hundred times
I never find my answer

There's a light in San Francisco
And it draws me slowly to the coast
High above the fortune and the blame
I can't explain
Someday I will know my name

I'll know it, and I know where you going
And I get back in the end

There's a light in San Francisco
And it draws me slowly to the coast
High above the fortune and the blame
I can't explain
Someday I will know my name
