

No Man's Land Man

Ilse DeLange

Always searching, looking for gold and a better way
Wherever you go, you never keep your eyes on the road
And you promise yourself you will, but you never stay
Seems like whatever you own you have to throw away

Can't you see you're always starting over again
The first to come and leave
Home is nowhere
You're stuck at the beginning of the end
You're a no man's land man

You keep your head up, determined as hell to do the best you can
But when you're so far ahead you don't see you're falling behind

Another day, another love and another fight
Always dancing between the dark and the light

Can't you see you're always starting over again
The first to come and leave
Home is nowhere
You're stuck at the beginning of the end
You're a no man's land man

Can't you see you're always starting over again
The first to come and leave
Home is nowhere
You're stuck at the beginning of the end
You're a no man's land man
You're a no man's land man
You're a no man's land man
