

Broken, Lost

Imminence

She held my hopes right in front of me
Just close enough to be out of reach
She was the hope that could never be Another love I could never breach

I'm not afraid
I'm getting used to fail
I haven't tried enough to know why
I'm not afraid
Not anymore

I made a choice for me
See me at the end of my time

I know home is where my heart is
What if I lost it?
Where do I belong?
We're all broken, lost
Looking for that place where we belong

I'll write a line worth living
I'll live a life worth living

Step up, behold the sea
He said
I see nothing, it holds nothing
Go on, behold the sea
He said
I see nothing, it tells nothing

I made a choice for me
See me at the end of my time

I know home is where my heart is
What if I lost it?
Where do I belong?
We're all broken, lost
Looking for that place where we belong

I can taste it at the tip of my tongue
I can feel it against the top of my head
If you cut me up you'll find my lonesome heart
Longing for the touch of your hand

We were the ones who walked alone
Come with me or stay unknown
We were the ones who walked alone
Come with me or stay unknown
We were the ones who walked alone
Come with me or stay unknown

I know home is where my heart is
What if I lost it?
Where do I belong?
We're all broken, lost
Looking for that place where we belong
