One Thing You Should Know

In Her Own Words

Drove passed your house, you weren't home
Fuel to the fire when you're all alone
Sometimes it gets too heavy (Too heavy)
Sometimes it gets too heavy
Where did you go? And who did you see?
Searching for answers, the ones that you need
Sometimes it gets too heavy (Too heavy)
Sometimes it gets too rough

Does it feel like there's nothing left to give?
Only got one life to live
Under the pressure, you're forcing a smile (Forcing a smile)

Wherever you choose to go
There's just one thing you should know
You can always come back home

Stuck in this maze, a crack in the door
A window that you can't see through anymore
Sometimes it gets too heavy (Too heavy)
Sometimes you bend until you break
And then it's all over, 2 PM, you're not sober
Bottle up the message until you learn the lesson
And wait out all these emotions
And break down, holding the focus

And feel like there's nothing left to give
Only got one life to live
Under the pressure, you're forcing a smile (Forcing a smile)

Wherever you choose to go
There's just one thing you should know
You can always come back home
And when you're miles away
You'll be back again someday
You can always come back home

Where did you go? And who did you see?
Searching for answers, the ones that you need
Sometimes it gets too heavy
Sometimes it gets too heavy
Where did you go? And how do you sleep?
'Cause I'm wide awake and I'm tryna believe
I just don't think you're ready
Sometimes it gets too heavy
Where did you go? And who did you see?
Searching for answers, the ones that you need
Sometimes it gets too heavy
Sometimes it gets too heavy
Where did you go? And how do you sleep?
I'm wide awake and I'm tryna believe
But I just don't think you're ready
'Cause sometimes it gets too heavy

Wherever you choose to go
There's just one thing you should know
You can always come back home

And when you're miles away
You'll be back again someday
You can always come back, always come back home