

Safe Haven

Indecision

this time it's all over again destroyed again and let down again built up again to be torn down again
this time it's all over again
built up again to be torn down again you became a memory awkward in your presence that state of mind separation from devotion I have no regrets except for everything if I offered eternity you'd still expect more run and run you'll never run far enough I know where you go when you're afraid