

Missing

Indica

Drawn to your face, like a moth to a flame
See it crystal clear, like a picture in a frame
So many wrongs, but I can only recall
Recall the best of us, before we threw it all away

I know I should forget, but I can't it let it go

And even now, after all this time, I still wonder where you are
Are you happy? Are you missing me at all?
Reaching out, 'cause I need to know, are you hurting like I am?

Are you crying? Are you missing me at all?

I know it's unkind to hope your heart's broken like mine
But it's the benefit for the one that's left behind
I'm fixed to the floor, wondering whether to warn that any minute now, you'll come walking through the door

I know I should forget, but I can't it let it go

And even now, after all this time, I still wonder where you are
Are you happy? Are you missing me at all?
Reaching out, 'cause I need to know, are you hurting like I am?

Are you crying? Are you missing me at all?

Reaching out, 'cause I need to know, are you hurting like I am?
Are you missing me at all?
