

Characters

InMemory

so let's pretend that you're someone who's worth this train wreck i'll let my ego split in half as she's approaching together, we'll chant out loud the satisfaction lose ourselves so we're not found

you don't know me i'm permanent
you don't know me i'm permanent
you don't know me i'm permanent and you don't know the half from fire to fading embers she remains fragile under stage lights

we both aren't sure i beg for a purpose
take my hand we'll make it through the satisfaction
and lose ourselves so we're not found

you don't know me i'm permanent
you don't know me i'm permanent
you don't know me i'm permanent you don't know the haaalllllfff i like to think that i'm someone who's wings have grown enough to lift him and i like to think that i'm someone who's wings have grown enough to lift him

who's wings have grown enough to lift him
who's wings have grown enough to lift him