

As the seasons turn and spoil
A crooked axis guides my way
Down unsung paths that burn out
The most hardened of drifters

Still I wander endlessly
Through houses turned to graves
A stone in the eyes of humankind
Forever at bay
Held captive by untold wounds
Of corporeal and psychic root
Aloft in a storm of unseen anguish
Where joy and sorrow entwine

Can I shake free the detritus of these countless, vagrant years
?
Can I harness the wild flame that lays dormant deep within?

Still I wander endlessly
Through houses turned to graves
A stone in the eyes of humankind
Forever at bay
Held captive by untold wounds
Of corporeal and psychic root
Aloft in a storm of unseen anguish
Where joy and sorrow entwine

A fire burns deep in the citadel of my weary heart
A fire burns deep in the citadel of my weary heart

I will break free from captivity
I will weather the storm
I will shake free from detritus
I will harness the wild flame