

Get Lost

Into It. Over It.

I don't care if you want to leave here
And I won't care if you think I'm square
I don't care if I'm going nowhere
And I could get lost from anywhere

Grown tired of excuses, maybe
All of my holding back
Just remember I loved you, maybe
Nevermind how it all fell flat

It's no wonder you warned me
It's no wonder you warned me twice
It's no wonder you warned me
Should've taken my own advice

I'm into all things new
A thought that doesn't involve you
Forging through my own path
Leaving and filling gaps

With goals mapped out like a soldier
I'll try dating someone older
I'll try to be somewhat bolder
Be way cooler, but not colder
Now, I'm on my own

It's no wonder you warned me
It's no wonder you warned me twice
It's no wonder you warned me
I should've taken my own advice

When I see myself out
When I see myself out
When I see myself out of your life
When I see myself out
When I see myself out
When I see myself out
When I see

It's no wonder you warned me
It's no wonder you warned me twice
It's no wonder you warned me
I should've taken my own advice
It's no wonder you warned me
(I don't care if you want to leave here)
It's no wonder you warned me twice
(And I won't care if you think I'm square)
It's no wonder you warned me
(I don't care if I'm going nowhere)
I should've taken my own advice
(I should've taken my own advice)
It's no wonder you warned me
(I don't care if you want to leave here)
It's no wonder you warned me twice
(And I won't care if you think I'm square)
It's no wonder you warned me
(I don't care if I'm going nowhere)

I should've taken my own advice
(I should've taken my own advice)

I don't care if you want to leave here
And I won't care if you think I'm square
I don't care if I'm going nowhere
And I should've taken my own advice
