Invent, Animate

When memories are all that's left of me
Rooted like evergreens, let fate rain on me
In the bitter air changing seasons bring
To exist in rememberings, am I worth a memory?

Washing away in the endless sea
The spinning of threads in uncertain lengths, let fate rain on me
Pull me under to a world that's still
Drown me in the cold, dense rift slowly in a moonlit drift
Take me away, cast the world in stone
Slow the spinning sun

Try to stop the sand, but it only flows quicker
Pry the ticking hand just to try to remember
Did I use the time I had, or did I let the time use me?
All the days I can't get back, suspend me in time

When memories are all that's left of me
Rooted like evergreens, let fate rain on me
In the bitter air changing seasons bring
To exist in rememberings, am I worth a memory?

Wear me down
Cast the world in stone
Dancing in the dark
I'll stay here all alone
Wear me down
Cast the world in stone
Dancing in the dark
I'll stay here all alone

Take me away
Cast the world in stone, slow the spinning sun
Nothing is lost as long as it's remembered
I've lost myself, I've lost myself
