He Reached Down

Iris DeMent

A certain man one day did go down to Jericho Fallin among thieves along the way Well they stripped him then they fled Leaving him for dead Lying on the side of the road

And then the priest came passing by He crossed over to the other side Then the Levite came and he did just the same

When the Samaritan heard his cry
He just could not pass on by
He dressed his wounds and he carried to the nearest inn

Well he reached down, he reached down He got right there on the ground He reached down, he reached down And he touched the pain

He paid the keeper the amount that was due If you need more he said  $I\square m$  good for that too He reached down, he reached down And he touched the pain

And then the Scribes in the Pharicese
Brought the adultress in for Jesus to see
Lord, shells sinned, now the law says she must be stoned
If therels a one of you thatls without sin
Said you can cast the first stone in
One by one they left, leaving Jesus and the woman alone

Well no accusers are left that I see And Woman, neither do I condemn thee He reached down, he reached down And he touched the pain

In the (Bible??) a story is told

About a traveler at the end of lifes road

Hess at the gates of the Kingdom and the Master says scome on ins

For I was hungry and you gave me meat

I was cold you put shoes on my feet

When I was in prison there was you who come to see about me

Well you reached down, you reached down You got right there on the ground You reached down, you reached down And you touched my pain

When you ore debted to the least of these He said you were doin it unto me You reached down, you reached down And you touched my pain

Well he reached down, he reached down And he touched the pain
