Daybreaks

Jack Johnson

Daybreaks, earthquakes, waves come without you When I see you, in my dreams you Never speak, never do you need to Understand it under your wing Under the impression you gave me Did I take it, did it take me Further in this continuation Become patient because there are some

Some rules I cannot break
You showed me when you came
If the ghost is supposed to love
Then why do I feel pain
'Cause nothing is for keeps
You just can't hold a cloud
The shape will always change
Then one day come back down

Night falls on all of our decisions
All our plans and all ambitions
And this darkness comes to define us
Comes to take us and remind us
Find our way from this side of thinking
Unafraid and under your wing
Night falls on us either way
'Cause there are some

Some rules I cannot break
You showed me when you came
If the ghost is supposed to love
Then why do I feel pain
'Cause nothing is for keeps
You just can't hold a cloud
The shape will always change
Then one day come back down

'Cause night falls on us either way Night falls on us either way

'Cause there are some
Some rules I cannot break
You told me when you came
The ghost is supposed to love
Then why do I feel pain
'Cause nothing is for keeps
You just can't hold a cloud
The shape will always change
Then one day come back down
