

Today Today

Jack Stauber

Today, today
Is one of those days
Stuck between yesterday and tomorrow
Everything to go and everywhere to do
Hot sun drippin' down the window

Count your teardrops, all hundred-fourteen of them and sing
Count your teardrops, all hundred-fourteen of them and sing

Today, today
Is one of those days
It seemed like the green light burned out
And where to begin
Just doesn't fall in
Forget what your move was about

Count your teardrops, all hundred-fourteen of them and sing
Count your teardrops, all hundred-fourteen of them and sing

(Si-i-i-ing)

Today, today
Is one of those days
That carries you slowly to next time
And as those walk by
See with your eye
A part of me is repeatedly given
