

Watch And Wait

James Morrison

Too many times we're in the same room
Not really knowing if we're safe
From all of the answers and all the questions
Don't want to leave it all to lay

And if you were looking now with my eyes
Would you see yourself in me
Can you imagine what it feels like
Would it be so hard to believe
To believe

Well I watch and I wait
But the time never comes
I'll heal my mistakes
I can't forget
What wasn't said
I can hear it
In the silence
So I watch and I wait

Maybe you pushed me a little too far
Oh no, now you could hardly see my face
Now all of the harsh words still surround us
They echo around this empty space
This empty space

Well I watch and I wait
But the time never comes
I heal my mistakes
But I can't forget
What wasn't said
I can hear it
In the silence
So I watch and I wait

And I'll heal my mistakes
Until the scars are all gone

Well
I watch
I wait
But the times never comes
I'll heal my mistakes
I can't forget
What wasn't said
I can hear it
In the silence
So I watch and I wait