

It's Time

Jamie McDell

Nothing really seems that different, though my whole world has changed,
And my mind has never felt so distant, and my thoughts are miles away,
Then you cared then you dared, then you opened up a window to my right,
There it goes I lost control,
Now it's written on my pages of my life.

And the story is brought to life,
Trash my pride,
Cause we're burning out tonight,
And it's breaking me,

Remember every slight affection, now we're flying to Amsterdam,
Now you're my one addiction, every part of who I am,
Now we're lost, but at what cost,
Now the silver linings turned a darker grey,
And I know to let go, is the only chance we'll have to fly away

And the story is brought to life,
Trash my pride,
Cause we're burning out tonight,
And it's breaking me,
And my saviour steps back in line,
But I'll be fine,
So I'm learning now it's time,
For my silly little dream

Now we're lost, but at what cost,
Now the silver linings turned a darker grey,
And I know to let go, is the only chance we'll have to fly away

And the story is brought to life,
Trash my pride,
Cause we're burning out tonight,
And it's breaking me,
And my saviour steps back in line,
But I'll be fine,
'Cause I'm learning now it's time,
For my silly little dream

For my silly little dream. [x3]
