Rewind

Jamie McDell

I remember waiting for those aeroplanes to cross the sky
Lie in golden grass and savour every moment we're alive
A day in summer when the music played a different kind of song, oh woah
Nervous whisper as you ask me to be your favourite girl
The painful memory of singing that we'd sail around the world
Now I'm wondering why I couldn't see how much I had to learn, o h woah

And rewind five times
So I can make it that we never met
And go back in time
So I can change the day I let you in
Rewind five times

All my memories of you are tinted with a shade of grey
Didn't know that I was capable of taking love away
Now in winter all I hope for is someday I'll let it go, oh woah
Every part of me is saying I should leave the past behind
But the hardest thing is trying to get your face out of my mind
All my energy is wasted on another summer lie, oh woah

And rewind five times
So I can make it that we never met
And go back in time
So I can change the day I let you in
Rewind five times

Release me from this never-ending hole
You've started war without a worthy cause
You crossed the line, I'm ready to let go
Erase it all before my mind explodes

And rewind five times
So I can make it that we never met
And go back in time
So I can change the day I let you in Rewind five times [x2]

I remember waiting for those aeroplanes to cross the sky
