

Do You Remember?

Janis Ian

I know who I'll run to
Shout it out aloud
When the evening sun goes down
Angels in the morning
Guard my bitter shroud
When the evening sun goes down

All of the days I lay sleeping, dreaming
All of the long, lonely days of September
Still I remember you

And the sun doesn't shine any more
In my back yard
Sing it again
No, the sun doesn't shine any more
In my backyard
Whoa, sing it again

Trees in the spring
Seem to call your name
Do you remember?

I know who I'll run to
Standing in the crowd
When the evening sun goes down
Angel of the morning
Teach me to be proud
When the evening sun goes down

All of the days I lay in surrender
All of the long, lonely days I remember
Still I surrender you

And the sun doesn't shine any more
In my back yard
Sing it again
No, the sun doesn't shine any more
In my backyard
Whoa, sing it again

Trees in the spring
Seem to call your name
Do you remember?
