

Questions

Jason Gray

All the answers I thought I knew, I don't know anymore
But it was always the questions that brought me to Your door
In the space in between not knowing and knowing
Is the place where I learn to let go

It was in the desert that I learned to thirst for You
It was in the storm where I found Love to pull me through
It was in the fire where Your faithfulness was proved
So I can rest in the wrestling with the questions
Cause they lead me back to You
They lead me back to You
Yeah they lead me back to You

In the push and the pull of who You are, and who I wish You'd be
Is the tension between who I am, and who You're making me
In the dance of our love, You step back, I move in
You are leading me as I let go

It was in the desert that I learned to thirst for You
It was in the storm where I found Love to pull me through
It was in the fire where Your faithfulness was proved
So I can rest in the wrestling with the questions
Cause they lead me back to You
They lead me back to You
Yeah they lead me back to You

Thank You for the questions Lord
The way they leave me wanting more
And keep me coming to Your door (I don't need answers)
Thank You for the questions Lord (I don't need answers)

It was in the desert that I learned to thirst for You
It was in the storm where I found Love to pull me through
It was in the fire where Your faithfulness was proved
So I can rest in the wrestling with the questions
Cause they lead me back to You
They lead me back to You
Yeah they lead me back to You
They lead me back to You
Yeah they lead me back to You