

Love Like July

Jason Michael Carroll

Love is a rebel, and that's what your family thought of me
The summer I met you, but that didn't stop us from anything Everyone was celebrating an independence, we were trying to get ours
Later in the heat of the night we found it, underneath the stars

Where the fireworks lighten up the summertime sky
Your sundress blowing like a flag raised high
Your red and white blanket and the blue in your eyes
And the freedom, of love like July

Love is a fighter, and we knew that we were worth fighting for
So we started a fire, brighter than anybody seen before Everyone was trying to stop me and you, but we had already lit
the fuse

Where the fireworks lighten up the summertime sky
Your sundress blowing like a flag raised high
Your red and white blanket and the blue in your eyes
And the freedom, of love like July
Of love like July

Love is a memory
A moment in time that you don't want to lose
And baby it grieves me
Every time I look at you

I see fireworks lighten up the summertime sky
Your sundress blowing like a flag raised high
Your red and white blanket and the blue in your eyes
And the freedom, of love like July
Of love like July
Of love like July
Of love like July
