This ain't nothing, you should have seen my last act
I rode a one-way Greyhound ticket to the king of the NASDAQ
I blew in there like Dorothy from the blizzard for the greener the grass at
A fairy in a bubble gave me a tiny little heart
Just beneath my tin skin where it was heaps of trash at
There was a Queen like Sheba, a Planet called Mars
A fiery furnace, a King and a dream with Shadrach
Last seen emerging just before quarantine in his hazmat
Everybody knew one day he'd return for his rings and rags back
Quality over quantity, substance over fake shit
I never sold my soul for one ounce of gold
Or let these devils and they industry hover me over the snake pit
The disbelievers like to call the Mother Plane a spaceship
The hypocrites wish me and destiny would get our dicks met
Niggas hate to see me coming like The Judgment
I'm a child of the covenant, from the Universal Government

Facts

Oh, and by the way, don't forget to tell your lovely mother
"Get the tea ready, bitch"
The boys are back in town
And as we all can clearly see - they're back outside
Bismillah Boys are in the building
You heard?
Alhamdulillah
It's up
