

Comfort Zone

Jelly Roll

Where do the stars go when the sky fall down
Why does the sound of silence seems so loud
I'm out of my comfort zone
I stepped into the unknown
And every bone in my body says lay it all out, for you

It's deeper than the song I sing
I feel you belong to me
Never felt so right with so many thinking so wrong of me
Mean why you just stop for me
I swear you did it all for me
And you think I don't see the sacrifice
And girl that bothers me

Between the baby momma drama
And all of the pressure that's connected with me
Can't believe you had to left me
Lord knows I don't deserve a woman like you
I'm a lazy piece of shit
With a fucking short fuse

I fear that one day you will wake up and be fucking confuse
Like how the fuck did I ever even fuck with this dude
Insecurities, I'm venerable
I don't know how to be since I finally found my heart
I chose to put it on my sleeve

Where do the stars go when the sky fall down
Why does the sound of silence seems so loud
I'm out of my comfort zone
I stepped into the unknown
And every bone in my body says lay it all out, for you