

WWJD

Jens Lekman

I bought one of those bracelets that say "WWJD," as in, "What W ould Jesus Do?"

And I decided it stood for "What Would Jens Do?"

And whenever I was in tough I thought, "What would Jens do?"

And then I did the opposite of that

What would Jens do?

They say if you play a country song backwards

All your sorrows are reversed and your luck returns

You find the job, your dog comes back

The kid you love starts calling you "dad"

And you break your curse

And since my life turned into a country song

It's time to ask myself, when things went wrong

"What would Jens do?" and then do the opposite of that

What would Jens do?

Let's rewind the tape

Every mistake you've made

Every tear rolling down your face

Every tear rolling down your face

Is the lesson learned, the good old friend who taps you on the shoulder and says, "Don't do that again!"

What would Jens do?

Well, that's what we're not gonna do

I bought one of those bracelets that say "WWJD," as in, "What W ould Jesus Do?"

And I decided it stood for "What Would Jens Do?"

And whenever I was in tough I thought, "What would Jens do?"

What would Jens do?
