

Somebody's Listening

Jesse Labelle

I've waited on the dawn
Through some dark and lonely nights
Oh and I've been down on my knees
Without a hope in sight
I've been lost along the way
I stumbled and I fell
I guess you don't know what heaven is
Until you've been through hell

Every dream that came undone
Every time I got off track
Every wrong turn that I took
On a road that led me back
To the place that I belong
To the heart I waited on
Everything that I was searching for
Was right here all along
You make me believe that God'll give you what you need
Even when you think you ain't got a prayer
Girl you're the living proof
That somebody's listening up there

All those never ending days
That it took me to find you
Baby it was worth the wait
To see your love come shining through
And I know the reason
For all the times I got it wrong
I was just waiting on the right one
To turn the dark into the dawn

Every dream that came undone
Every time I got off track
Every wrong turn that I took
On a road that led me back
To the place that I belong
To the heart I waited on
Everything that I was searching for
Was right here all along
You make me believe that God'll give you what you need
Even when you think you ain't got a prayer
Girl you're the living proof
That somebody's listening up there
Somebody's listening up there
