

For Today

Jessica Lea Mayfield

I was walking with your left hand in my back pocket
I stared at the sky while you kissed me
And you were running away, away from everything
And I stayed behind so you'd miss me
And all these words would sound so sweet

I could care less about you
Care less about you
How I love the sound of you walking away
And I can see clearer and I'm getting closer
To finding out to just who I am without you in the way
So hold me
But only for today

In spite my best ambitions
I get in the worst situations
But here I am crystal clean
And all the nights are lonely
The words I say to you are phoney
Because there's nothing left to say
And though you say you can't live without me
And every single night you think about me

I could care less about you
Care less about you
How I love the sound of you walking away
And I can see clearer and I'm getting closer
To finding out to just who I am without you in the way
So hold me
But only for today
