

Who We're Meant to Be

Jessica Mauboy

These are the moments that you can't replace
Ain't got no time for any stupid games
Singing to CD's the 90's
In the back seat of your car
We got black street on repeat we don't care where we are
These are the moments that you can't replace, that you can't replace

Can we drive away all night
And not stop until we find
Somewhere that reminds us who we're meant to be
We don't have to know the way
And I know we'll make mistakes
That's a part of being who we're meant to be
Who we're meant to be
Who we're meant to be

Through everything you've always been the same
The one thing that I'll never want to change
All of the mistakes that I made that I hand signed for you
Spent hours daydreaming about what we would do
These are the moments that you can't replace, you can't replace

Can we drive away all night
And not stop until we find
Somewhere that reminds us who we're meant to be
We don't have to know the way
And I know we'll make mistakes
That's a part of being who we're meant to be
Who we're meant to be
Who we're meant to be
Who we're meant to be
Who we're meant to be
They're the moments that you can't replace, you can't replace

Can we drive away all night
And not stop until we find
Somewhere that reminds us who we're meant to be
We don't have to know the way
And I know we'll make mistakes
That's a part of being who we're meant to be
Who we're meant to be
Who we're meant to be
Let's just drive until we find
Who we're meant to be
Who we're meant to be
They're the moments that you can't replace, no you can't replace
Who we're meant to be
