

Everlasting Moon

Jimmy Buffett

This is a little song called 'Everlasting Moon' about what some people did to preserve the environment

The sky revealed the rumor in a misty gray cocoon
Some angry baby-boomers stole the everlasting moon
They found a new location, clear and poison-free
In a distant constellation, oh, they called it lunacy

Hanging in the sky, the perfect alibi
Baby, come outside with me
There's a moon you've got to see
Smiling every place with his laser-painted face
Light of love in each moonbeam
Won't you step into my dream, everlasting moon?

Everlasting moon
Everlasting moon

Back when nature ruled the heavens, old gypsies, fools and loons
Were dragged across the ocean by that everlasting moon
When it goes from full to crescent, I move in and out of tune
It's the envy of the Kremlin, it's our everlasting moon

Hanging in the sky, the perfect alibi
Baby, come outside with me
There's this moon you've got to see
Smiling every place with his laser-painted face
Light of love in each moonbeam
Won't you step into my dream, everlasting moon?

Everlasting moon
Everlasting moon
