

Paranoid

Jão

Call my mother, call my mother now
I'm laying on the couch like I am six feet under Just lay something at my feet
I see you everywhere now, in every billboard, every corner
I tiptoe at the edge of a cliff
'Cause I see your face in the water

Am I being paranoid? I
Tried to leave it all behind
I really tried

But I go to places, I see them changing
I go sit by your front door
Drinking something with an empty stomach
How can I know for sure?
If the pain is real
Then why can't I find a cure?

I see colors never seen before
All these people smile, ignore
All their pain, I get over you
I write down almost everything
'Cause all that's left of me is what's left of a memory
And I can see you everywhere now

Am I being paranoid? I
Tried to leave it all behind
I really tried
I go to places, but now I'm famous
I can sit by your front door
Drinking something with an empty stomach
How can I know for sure?
If the pain is real
Then why can't I find a cure?

A cure
Oh
A cure now
Oh, whoa, whoa
Find a cure

I'm searching with
All of my life just to learn what
It would be like to live a great
Story with the love of my life
I see you everywhere these days
Why can't you recognize my face anymore?

If the pain is real
Then why can't I find a cure?
Mmm
