

Not Too Young to Die of a Broken Heart

Joe Cocker

Hey, young and handsome
Wipe that grin off your face
Better fall to your knees
When the preacher says "Grace"
'Cause you're the one
Who's gonna be upside down

Don't look now but this is a classic case
Always starts with a woman
Who put a man in his place
Stick around, ride on a sinking star, oh yeah
'Cause you're never too young
To die of a broken heart

Yeah, you know you're not too young
You got legs but you just can't run
No, you're not too young
To die of a broken heart

So much wisdom from the mouth of a babe
To be in front of a [?] way
There's no way out, he's headed for a ship of fools

A poor boy humble in the prime of his youth
Has to take his medicine, oh, and swallow the truth
Still it's so hard to see somebody torn apart, yes it is
'Cause you're never too young to die of a broken heart

Yeah, you know you're not too young
Just a taste of bigger things to come
No, you're not too young
To die of a broken heart, babe

(Not too young) You're never too young
(You got legs but you just can't run)
Heaven love him
(Not too young) to die of a broken heart

Every man who is young and strong
Thinks his love will last forever
You know, you're not too young
You got legs but you just can't run
No, you're not too young
To die of a broken hear

(Not too young) no, you're never too young
(You got legs but you just can't run)
Heaven love him
(Not too young) to die of a broken heart

(Not too young) you're never too young
(You got legs but you just can't run)
Heaven love him
(Not too young) to die of a broken heart
