Fantasize

Joe Lynn Turner

Another night, I lay and watch you sleep
I listen to the music of the wind outside the windows
It's on my mind, it never leaves my soul
My heart beats with the rhythm and my blood begins to boil

The silence is too loud, the darkness hurts my eyes
I need to shout it out way up into the sky, we fantasize

They look at me, you're right there but you're out of touch I want to touch you but I won't, what I want to do I don't Those girls gone wild, late night tv wearing me down I look at them and they all smile, I wish they'd come to town

I lay awake, it's hard to drift away These thoughts delay my slumber Like a rock I stay, I wonder When we're aware, don't we all stare At what we never had and question Don't you come clean in confession
