

Moment

Joeseef

Difference

Sitting across from me, I can feel the change in you

In how you move

Listen

Adjusting your tone of voice just to try and change the mood

It's nothing new

Now I can smell the burning of your mum's cigarettes

I'm staring into your eyes, hope that we can forget

The feeling's gone

Till I'm on my own

Only for a moment, moment

Take me some place where you'll never slip away

Only for a moment, moment

Take me some place where nothing could ever change

Is this it?

Could we fall apart together just like we used to do?

All blood and bruises

Do you remember

Splitting a bag of the car?

You know it never really mattered what for

Did those nights even happen at all?

Doesn't really matter what I did, what you said

We're wrapped around each other at the edge of the bed

The feeling's gone

I'm all alone

Only for a moment, moment

Take me some place where you'll never slip away

Only for a moment, moment

Take me some place where nothing could ever change

You said

It's just out of habit that we fall back into old ways

There's no shame

It's too late

The bitterness is killing us, it's something we just can't shake

It doesn't matter if it's

Only for a moment, moment

Take me some place where you'll never slip away

Only for a moment, moment

Take me some place where nothing could ever change

(You'll never slip away)

(You'll never slip away)

(You'll never slip away)

(You'll never slip away)
