

Letting You Go

Joey Graceffa

In the early days I looked up to
A strong and fearless face
We would paint the pictures of our lives
Before they got erased
And now it seems so distant like a man
A constant memory
I'm standing at the crossroads of us
And I can't believe

Oh, you used to carry me around
Oh, I tried all I can do but now

I can't cry for you anymore
I'm turning round
It's changing now
I can't wake you up
Now the memories fading out
So I'm leaving now
I'm letting you go

Wishing and praying
But there's nothing I can do
I've tried, but I can't resurrect
The person I once knew
And memories of old faces
Left us in an unfamiliar place
I've tried to still remember
That strong and fearless face

Oh, you used to carry me around
Oh, I tried all I can do but now

I can't cry for you anymore
I'm turning round
It's changing now
I can't wake you up
Now the memories fading out
So I'm leaving now
I'm letting you go
I'm letting you go

I can't reach for you anymore
I'm giving out
I'm breathing out

I can't mourn for you and I know
You're still around
Though it's hard now
I'm letting you go
I'm letting you go
