

She

Joey McIntyre

She beats the sun and off she goes
The day begins, but no one knows
'Cause the world is half asleep
She opens up and lights the stove
She pours a cup for old man Joe
He leaves a tip and she tucks it away

And she's got plans instead of dreams
This ain't make-believe

Spent a lifetime movin' mountains
At a place along the sea
Knows what it means to come from nothin'
Nobody knows her better than she

Used to think there'd be a guy
To buy her things and tell her why
She's never gonna be alone
Instead, she forged a road when times were tough
She learned in time she was enough
The answers were all her own

And she's got plans instead of dreams, now
This ain't make-believe

Spent a lifetime movin' mountains
At a place along the sea
Knows what it means to come from nothin'
Nobody knows her better than she

Can see it now, cute as can be
White picket fence and a swing on a tree
And in the back, a beaten path
Leadin' down to the ocean

Knows what it means to come from nothin'
Nobody knows her better than

She spent a lifetime movin' mountains
She's at a place along the sea
She knows what it means to come from nothin'
Nobody knows her better than, nobody knows her better than she
She

Nobody knows her better than she
