

Comes a Time

Johan

The papers said you were leaving
Heading to a place where nobody knows you
Where these people somewhat like you
Hiding from the truth and nobody knows a thing

You know there comes a time
You know there comes a time
When everything's about you

Common sense is naked
Reasoning in faith, all out of context (contest?)
And what do you care for opinions
Love you, hate you, they don't mean that much to you

You know there comes a time
You know there comes a time
When everything's about you

You know there comes a time
You know there comes a time
When the world revolves around you

Are you calling for the truth
Are you tired of being you all the time
Is it you're afraid to lose?
Everything you always thought was your lie

The word is on the street
You surrendered in defeat
They finally brought you down

But you know
You know there comes a time
You know there comes a time
To show the world around you

You know there comes a time
You know there comes a time
When everything's about you

You know there comes a time
You know there comes a time
The world revolves around you
