

Don't Know Why She Came

John Cale

I turn on the radio, all I can do is cry
Hearing you sing the same old songs again
People come, people go
It's all the same to me

Cause everyday is boring without you
Even if I hear your voice, lonely missionary
Seems that you found a different way to live
And even now that I found out
How much I did love you
I'm not sorry anymore
Don't know why she came
Don't know why she came
Don't know why she came down here at all

And you finally lost your voice
Can't get the words out
I don't care, let me tell you
It's not worth it, not yet
And when those open doors are swinging wide
That's when we're to say goodbye

Hang on to nothing, hang on tight
Hang on to nothing, all the night
Hang on to nothing, don't let go
Hang on to nothing, then you must go

Don't know why she came...
