

Without You

John De Sohn

I don't want it all, don't want it all without you

I always thought I'd be just fine
Out on my own, chasing the highs
Sleep on a bed that's made of dreams
I thought that I could, that it would feel good
'Cause I have been taught to stand alone
And take what you have and don't let go
But as time went on, I came to know
Don't sound like it should, don't feel quite as good

To hear your song on the radio
To see the lights in Tokyo
To have a home you can call your own
But I don't want it all, don't want it all without you
To sleepless nights on a midnight train
To watch the sun rise at six AM
To have a crowd calling out your name
But I don't want it all, don't want it all without you

I don't want it all without you
Without you
I don't want it all without you
Without you
Don't want it all, don't want it all without you
I don't want it all without you

They often say it hurts so good
Hellbent to find you when you're done
Done with the fought to find someone
Yeah, it hurts so good, and that's how it should be
I have been taught to stand alone
And take what you have and don't let go
But as time went on, I came to know
Don't like it should, don't feel quite as good

To hear your song on the radio
To see the lights in Tokyo
To have a home you can call your own
But I don't want it all, don't want it all without you
To sleepless nights on a midnight train
To watch the sun rise at six AM
To have a crowd calling out your name
But I don't want it all, don't want it all without you

I don't want it all without you
Without you
I don't want it all without you
Without you
Don't want it all, don't want it all without you

To sleepless nights on a midnight train
To watch the sun rise at six AM
To have a crowd calling out your name
But I don't want it all, don't want it all without you
