

I'd Rather Be Blind

John Mayall

Well I travel the highway I make many scenes.
Been lost in darkness, I've been out on the streets.
I feel so unhappy yes, sometimes I wanted to die, Lord
But if I have your sweet sweet sweet love, I know I get right.

This old world is turning, like wheels on a train,
I hold on to each moment, that it won't come again.
Let me tell you I'm not educated, but there's one thing I know,

That I'd rather be blind, than to see you go.

I want a strong woman, who knows how to be weak,
To make me feel so good, every time she speaks.
You know I got to listen, when I see her smile,
It feels so much like heaven when I'm with her, but just a little while

Don't leave me darling, whatever you do,
Just give me a piece of your heart now honey, I know I'll get through
And there is only one thing baby, that I want you to know,
That I'd rather be blind, than to see you go.

So don't leave me darling, whatever you do,
Just give me a piece of your heart now honey, I know I'll get through
And there is only one thing baby, that I want you to know,
That I'd rather be blind, than to see you go.
That I'd rather be blind, than to see you go.
That I'd rather be blind, than to see you go.
