

What I'm Dreaming About

John Splithoff

Every time that I begin to sway
I throw it all away
The feeling never stays
But anytime that I begin to swoon
I aim for the moon
And pray it won't consume me

Well I've been falling through an unassuming hole in the ground
And I've been searching through the residue of dreams that can't be found

Call it what you will anything at all
Call it just a dream, a dream that I can't recall
A dream I can't recall
Because I don't know what I'm dreaming about
I don't know what I'm dreaming about
I don't know what I'm dreaming about
What I'm dreaming about anymore

Everyone who knows me says I'm young
My youth is on the run
To use it as my gun
Oh, but anyone can say that they're afraid
To find that things have changed
Their dreams have rearranged

Well I've been falling through an unassuming hole in the ground
And I've been searching through the residue of dreams that can't be found

But call it what you will anything at all
Call it just a dream, a dream that I can't recall
A dream I can't recall
Because I don't know what I'm dreaming about
I don't know what I'm dreaming about
I don't know what I'm dreaming about
What I'm dreaming about anymore

Vibrant light from last night
The taste of gin on my lips
I turn off each and every light
And underneath the sheets my body slips
And I dream about tomorrow
And I think about the past
It's so hard to be so sure now
If these dreams are meant to last

Because I don't know what I'm dreaming about
I don't know what I'm dreaming about
I don't know what I'm dreaming about
I don't know what I'm dreaming about

What I'm dreaming about anymore
