

I Drop More Than I Drink

Johnny Paycheck

Lately I can't keep my hands from shaking
I can't see too well so I might just ask you why
I can't keep my mind from wandering
Her memories won't let me think
And lately I seem more to drop more than I drink

I started out drinking for a pastime
Never dreaming the bottle could drag me down
But in a sea of fools and bright lights
I began to sink
And lately I seem more to drop way more than I drink

Cause my nerves are gone and so is my pride
I'd do anything for a bottle that's how my future died
The house we used to live in now is empty
But not half as empty as this life of mine

Cause since I lost her love I don't care how low I sink
But lately I seem more to drop way more than I drink
