

Nowhere To Run

Johnny Paycheck

All around is the sound of tender hearts breaking
And the a man who falls in love what a chance he's taking
For the battles of romance has wounded everyone
They'd like to hide away from life but there's nowhere to run

Nowhere to run from the tears of regret
Nowhere to hide from the pain they can't forget
They live in the shadows of rays of the sun
They'd like to hide away from life but there's nowhere to run

How I've cried here inside with the soul in me burning
For I know my love is gone but my heart keeps on yearning
Will tomorrow heal my soul or has my hurting just begun
I'd like to hide away from life but there's nowhere to run

Nowhere to run from the haunting memories
Nowhere to hide from the mark she put on me
I've wept for the lonely souls now I am one
I'd like to hide away from life but there's nowhere to run
I'd like to hide away from life but there's nowhere to run
