Let Me In

Jon Bryant

Why's it always rain
When I leave my keys at home?
You used to be an open door
But now you lock me out
Why's it have to rain
When I'm already so cold?
If you were sleeping next to me
I'd never know this sound

And I called you a thousand times to wake you up
My head's against the window and it's fogging up
I can't see you anywhere now
No, I can't see you anywhere

When you find out I've been all alone here in the dark
Sleeping in the backseat of my car
Will you let me in, let me in?
'Cause I'm tired now
And I know that you're dreaming, god bless your heart
Never been so close but felt so far
I'm locked out, so come down
And let me in

Can you hear me now?
'Cause it's already been an hour
And you're not pickin' up the phone
My battery's running out

And I called you a thousand times to wake you up
My head's against the window and it's fogging up
I can't see you anywhere now
No, I can't see you anywhere

When you find out I've been all alone here in the dark
Sleeping in the backseat of my car
Will you let me in, let me in?
'Cause I'm tired now
And I know that you're dreaming, god bless your heart
Never been so close but felt so far
I'm locked out, so come down
And let me in

You are my only way home
I wanna get back there
Yeah, you are my only way home
I wanna get, wanna get back there

When you find out I've been all alone here in the dark
Sleeping in the backseat of my car
Will you let me in, let me in?
'Cause I'm tired now
And I know that you're dreaming, god bless your heart
Never been so close but felt so far
I'm locked out, so come down
And let me in
And let me in
And let me in

And let me in, let me in
