

Come Home

Jon Foreman

The burning inside
Starts to let go
Turns into smoke
Nobody shows it
The spark in your eye
Carries the hope
That died long ago
Everyone knows it

The hope that you have
The dream that we were
Home feels so far away
You were made for more than just pain

Looking for reasons to try
A reason to live or to die
Won't you come home
Back to where your heart is
This is the meaning of life
You were born for the dance not the fight
Won't you come home
Back to where your heart is

Won't you come home
Won't you come home

There once was a girl
Who's now just a ghost
Who's now just a ghost
Everyone knows it
You've seen it before
We watched you explode
The highs and the lows
But nobody shows it

And nothing hurts worse
Than hope that's deferred
So don't let this slip away
I see you shining under the shame

Looking for reasons to try
A reason to live or to die
Won't you come home
Back to where you started
This is the meaning of life
You were born for the dance not the fight
Won't you come home
Back to where you started

Fading away
Fading away
Fading away

Looking for reasons to try

You were born for the dance not the fight
Won't you come home
Won't you come home
Won't you come home
