Gender

Jonathan Davis

I came in your window last night like a ghost (Never woke you)
And this invasion was never supposed (To hurt you)
Just need to breathe you, observe you, dissect you
Protect you from yourself, you understand?
I know my gender but still I demand (To be you)

Can I wear your skin?
Can I have it now?
Such a perfect soul and I wanna take it from you
Take it from you, take it from you, take it from you
Turn my gender down

Looked in your makeup, I'm touching your clothes (I won't break them)
Look at your little shoes lined in a row (Can I take them?)
Just wanna feel 'em and smell 'em
Caress 'em, and press 'em to my flesh, you understand?
And is it stealing if I come to confess? (Wish I was you)

Can I wear your skin?
Can I have it now?
Such a perfect soul and I wanna take it from you
Take it from you, take it from you, take it from you
Turn my gender down

I'm sick of this situation
I've outgrown what I'm made of
I need a new motivation
This ride I'm on, I'll get off
Just need to breathe you, observe you, dissect you
Protect you from yourself, you understand?
Just wanna feel 'em and smell 'em
Caress 'em, and press 'em to my flesh, and nothing less
I know my gender but still I demand
(To be you)

Can I wear your skin?
Can I have it now?
Such a perfect soul and I wanna take it from you
Take it from you, take it from you, take it from you
Turn my gender down
