

Irony

Jonny Diaz

Always liked grass to be green, but I just can't take the rain it seems sometimes

And that's how it is with You and me, I hate the very things I need sometimes

It's like a thousand pounds of irony come crashing down on top of me the day I learned what it means to be free A heart that is enslaved to You, two feet that remain chained to You and follow You wherever You may lead Oh, and then You'll see a heart that's free

Well it might just be stupidity, but I know my pride can swallow me sometimes

And I know You know much more than me, but I forget that fact so easily sometimes

Oh, but now I see Your plans for me
Oh, and now I know the grand scheme

Just 'cause I want it doesn't mean I need it 'cause I know You've got the best for me

I may not know what, I may not see it, but help me see You through the irony

Lord, give to me, oh, a heart that's free

Chain me now to You

Lord, give to me, oh, a heart that's free

Enslaved to Your truth
