Jordan Rakei

Once I bottled the canvas to my lover's heart
But the stow was too full, and that envelope had a letter
In that scarcely room
Back in silence is when it all began falling apart
I was always a clumsy speaker, and we couldn't find one another
In that scarcely room

Mark my words, I say I'm guilty of no poetry
I was working, I confess, see the courage in her eyes
In that scarcely room
There were words of disagreement
But we talked to find the answers, in a mutual disposition
In that scarcely room

How can I find a reason to love you, when I don't love myself
How can I find a reason to love you, when I don't love myself,
self

How can I find a reason to love you, when I don't love myself
How can I find a reason to love you, when I don't love myself,
self

Shout at me and there are traits of insecurity
See the man had stole her fire, so it's her who put the flame o ut
In that scarcely room
Courted dress for the occasion, yet not filled with glee
His hands reaching for the curtain, she was quick to put the li ght out
In that scarcely room

How can I find a reason to love you, when I don't love myself
How can I find a reason to love you, when I don't love myself,
self

How can I find a reason to love you, when I don't love myself
How can I find a reason to love you, when I don't love myself,
self

How can I find a reason to love you, when I don't love myself
How can I find a reason to love you, when I don't love myself,
self
