

You Still Think Of Me

Jordin Sparks

Painting my nails a new shade of blue
Shaking my head at the memory of you
Can't believe all of the things you put me through
You had so many outside relations
Tried to lie through your teeth, can't explain them
Made me feel good just to erase 'em

You were waking up in other people's sheets
But you still thought of me

You still thought of me
And I know it didn't kill you, baby
You still thought of me
You still thought of me
And I know it didn't kill you, baby

Taking a different type of view
I unwrap my heart to someone new
Leaving you might gaining me, it's true
Meet girls, smother them with false attention
Blame is your favorite vocation
It made you feel good 'til you replaced 'em

You should try and practice what you preach
But you still think of me

You still think of me
And I know it really kills you, baby
You still think of me
Baby, you still think of me
And I know it really kills you, baby
Aye, yeah
You still think of me
(You still think)
Baby, you still think

You were waking up in other people's sheets
You should try and practice what you preach
I still wonder how the hell you sleep
After finally leaving you
I know that you still think of me

You still think of me
And I know how much it kills you, baby
You still think of me
Baby, you still think of me
And I know how much it kills you, baby
You still think of

Me and you doing things
You see my face when you're asleep
I'm inside your head playing games
While you use a band-aid of different names
You still think of me