

A Little Memory

Josh Thompson

Morning sunlight don't hurt my eyes like it used to These days, trouble ain't what I'm getting into
It feels good to be back on track
Lookin' in the mirror don't hurt so bad
I hate it that it took you packin' up your bags
And leavin' me to make me see

I still hear that goodbye and the front door closing
And I still see that dust cloud from the Goodyears going
Guess you left just enough of you behind to wake me up
For good this time,
You didn't have to stay to make me change,
A little memory goes a long, long way

I try long drives but you always seem to follow
Hid behind neon lights, left me empty as a bottle
And every night seemed to be more of the same
And everything that ever drove you away
But I'm a dollar short and a day late
Of maybe ever getting you back one day

I still hear that goodbye and the front door closing
And I still see that dust cloud from the Goodyears going
Guess you left just enough of you behind to wake me up
For good this time,
You didn't have to stay to make me change
A little memory goes a long, long way

I die in side every time I relive it
I make my bed and now I'm lying here in it

Yeah, I still hear that goodbye and the front door closing
And I still see that dust cloud from the Goodyears going
Guess you left just enough of you behind to wake me up
For good this time,
You didn't have to stay to make me change,
A little memory goes a long, long way
A long, long way

A little memory goes a long, long way
