

I stayed too long
I should have heard the sirens
I blame it on
Temptation in my system
Casino eyes and golden hands
You grip my waist
Won't let me go
Singing words that make me stay

Sinatra charm
A silver tongue
The devil had the blue sea
Cradled on his arm
Those sweeter days don't taste the same
I never learnt to walk away

Say you don't love me anymore
My feet don't move when I'm halfway out the door
Say you don't love me anymore
Addicted, you're my only cure

And the rain keeps falling to your sound
And the rain keeps falling to your sound
And the rain keeps falling to your sound
And all I wanna do is say now

Babe, take the honey back
I'm more than any Friday shag
Used to talk so differently
Daily dose, my remedy

Got me out here smoking more
Your influence, round of applause
Losing more than I have won

"Baby, babe," you should know that ain't my name
Only listening to problems if your odds are getting laid (Odds are getting 1 aid)
"Baby, babe," all the shit you say's the same
Just a secondhand serenade

Say you don't love me anymore (Oh, oh, oh)
My feet don't move when I'm halfway out the door
Say you don't love me anymore (Say you don't love me)
Addicted, you're my only cure

And the rain keeps falling to your sound
And the rain keeps falling to your sound
And the rain keeps falling to your sound
And all I wanna do is say now

And the rain keeps falling to your sound
And the rain keeps falling to your sound
And the rain keeps falling to your sound
And all I wanna do is say now
