

Pride

Joy Oladokun

It's easy to forget that you are strong
You've been pushing against the tide
You try to do it on your own
Those who try to cut you down
Are scared of their own truth
It's easier to forget that there are people just like you

A heart can break
A thousand times
No hands can take
What's ours
They can't change the beauty that's inside
Pride

It's easy to forget there's nothing wrong
And the voices that make you doubt
They all have issues of their own

And those who try to cut you down
Are scared of their own truth
It's easy to forget that they are people just like you

A heart can break
A thousand times
No hands can take
What's ours
They can't change the beauty that's inside

Love for my haters
Stuck in their anger
We won't apologize
Sooner or later
They won't be afraid of
What they're trying to fight
Pride
Pride
Oh, pride
